PITTSBURGH LOVE STORIES

"I saw love there I just did not pick it up -mistake"
~Nayirra Waheed

Magee Women's Hospital
"I am over the moon in love!"

Brewhhouse Association
"We need to build new systems, make room for new ways to move this country forward. It's an amazingly unique country. It's not just an exhibition. It's an invitation to examine these things."

Point State Park, underpass
"I was so happy and relieved to find this place. I never knew that the Festival had a nursing area!"

Nixon Theatre (August Wilson Center)
"I worked here in 1953-1954. It was a nice place to work. We needed to put up all the seats when the shows were done. My girlfriend and I could go upstairs and do our homework. The nuns didn't like that we worked there because some of the shows were a bit risqué."

Syria Mosque (Pittsburgh Athletic Association)
I had a student membership in a Sunday afternoon series the whole time I was there. It's probably where I first saw Islamic ornaments, coming from a small town in NJ. I was there 1960-64."

Allegheny General Hospital
"The boys were born here."

Omar Khayyam (Khalil's)
"a Middle Eastern restaurant that I would go to with fellow students only on very special occasions. My initiation into exotic food, having grown up on 1950s American. It was lush with carpets and draped textiles, dark. The food was fabulous!"

Duquesne University
"It's where we met..."

These places are marked by a story of love. You can also find a 4"x 4" 3D printed sculpture of LOVE in each location. These sculptures are available to keep at a first come first serve basis.
