

Disrupt Displacement

At each of these locations, the City of Albuquerque continues to enact sweeps, displacing people and often throwing away their homes and belongings.

We must organize to demand that those most impacted lead the way toward various accessible housing options, including community-driven tent communities and an end to the criminalization of those who are marginalized. "Nothing about us without us."

We also recognize that this ongoing practice of forced relocation here in Tiwa Territory has deep roots in settler colonial violence. Disrupting that violence is the responsibility of us all.

From March 2020 to April 2021, ABQ Mutual Aid delivered care packages to over 60,000 community members, covering 17 zip codes. This act of love and solidarity is ongoing. Our work is sustained by generous gifts of time, energy, and resources from community members in Albuquerque and beyond. Together, we can build the world we want to see.

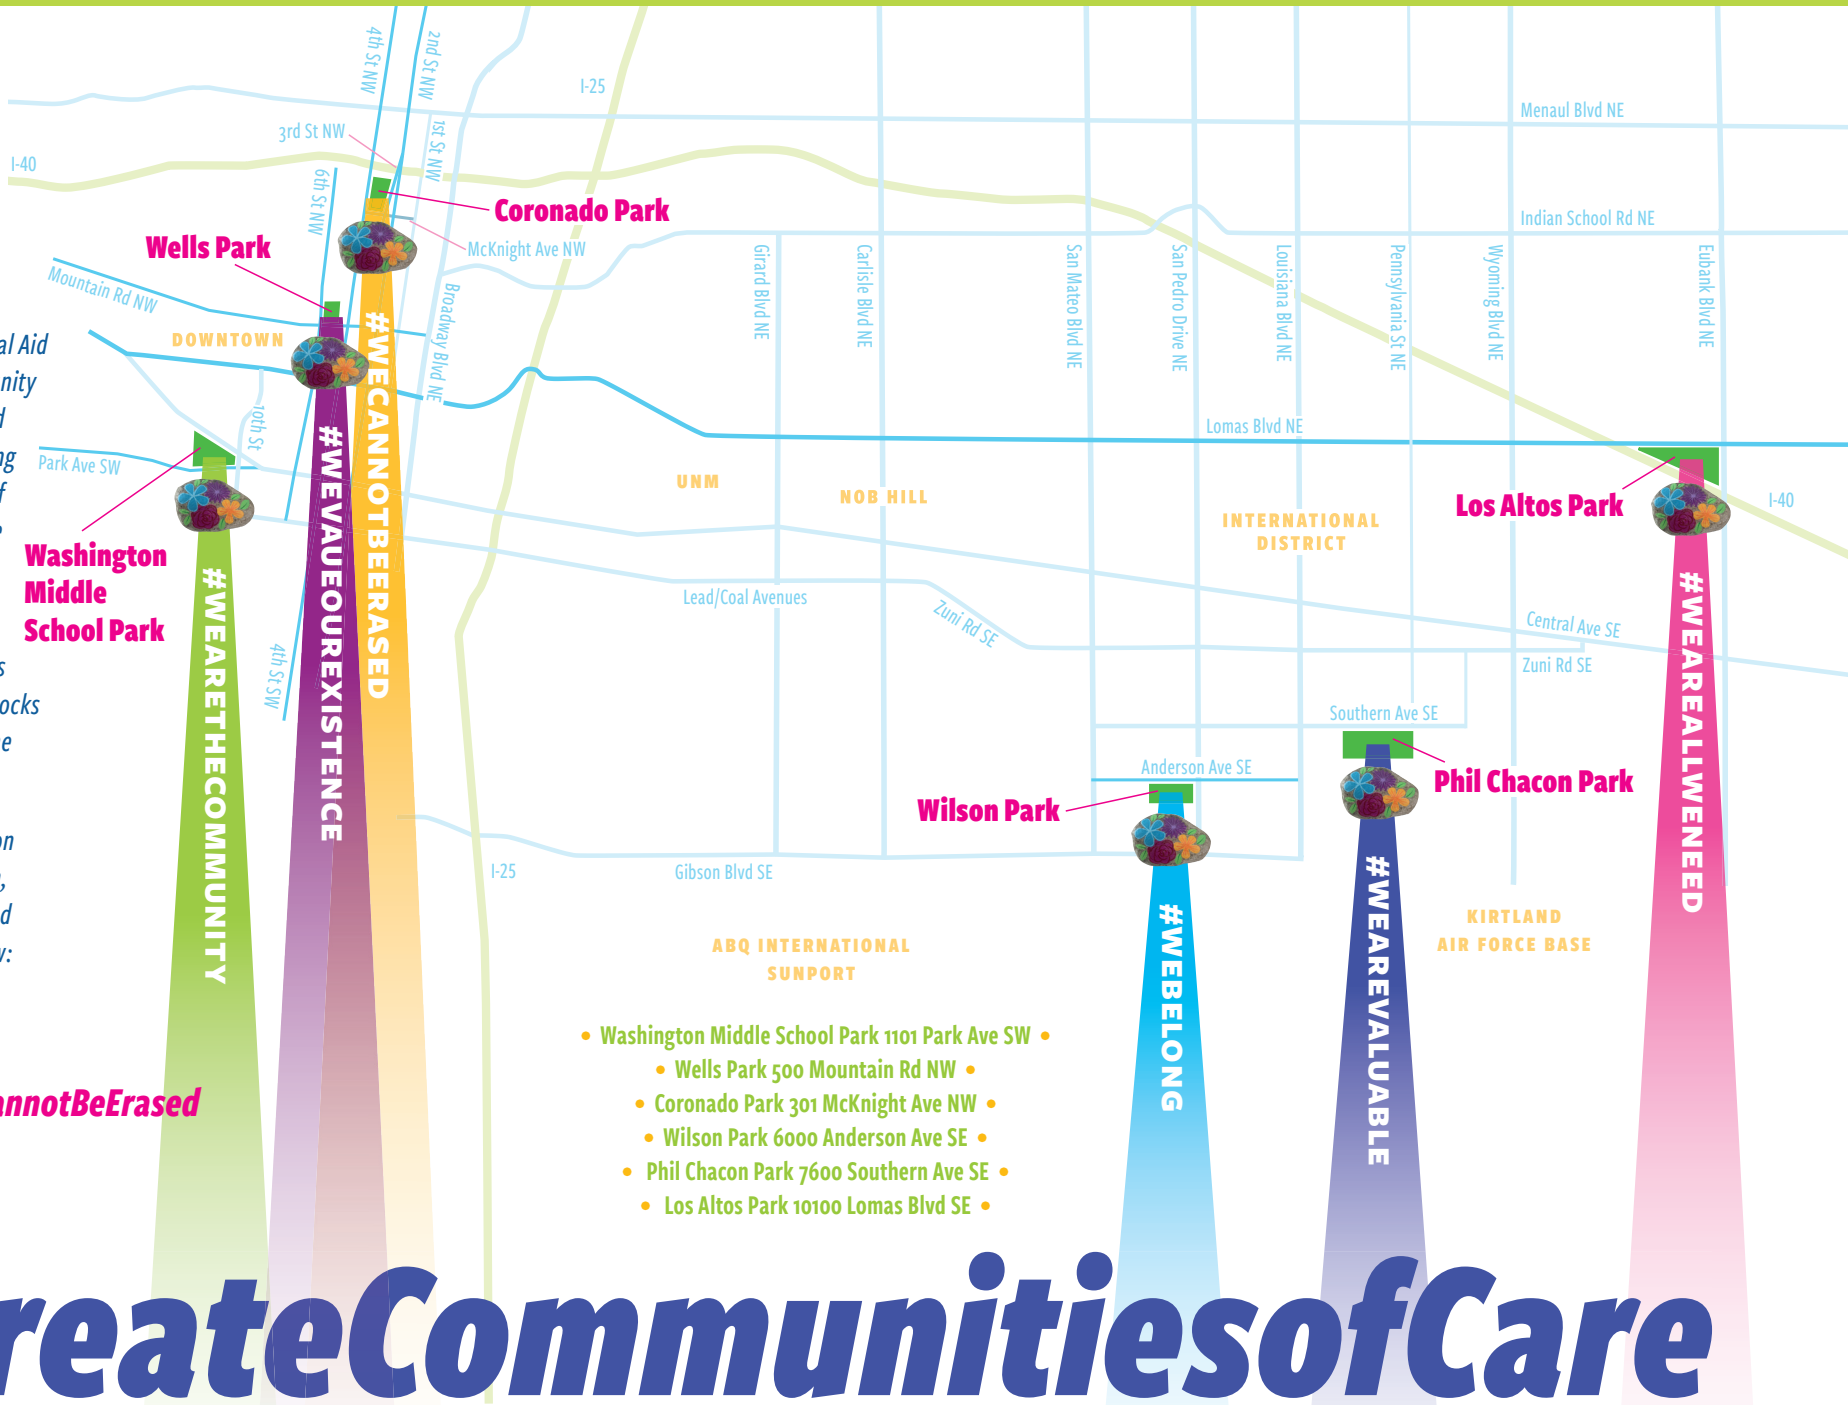

At each of these same locations, you will find rocks painted by Mutual Aid volunteers and community members (both housed and unhoused), bringing joy and the presence of community back to the places where sweeps continue to happen.

We invite you to join us by painting your own rocks and placing them at one or more of these sites.
